EDITOR'S PREFACE

It is a great satisfaction to me that I am privileged to include in my Modern Language Series an English Pronouncing Dictionary by Prof. Daniel Jones, whose reputation as a phonetician extends far beyond the limits of this country. It is a work of permanent value as the record, by a competent and careful observer, of a certain type of English speech in the first part of the twentieth century.

Prof. Jones, in his introduction, indicates clearly the class of people whose speech is represented. His concern has been to represent it faithfully, and as far as I am able to judge his efforts have been successful.

It may be pointed out that this form of speech is very widely used by educated people in Southern England, and that those whose home is elsewhere, and whose dialect differs from it considerably, often make concessions to it, in order that they may be more generally understood. This has been the case, to a marked degree, in the 'great public schools' where this kind of speech prevails; and the influence of these schools has been a very great (but, I believe, neither the only, nor even the greatest) factor in rendering acceptable what Prof. Jones has sometimes called 'public school pronunciation.' I am disposed to ascribe the considerable extension of this form of speech since the middle of the nineteenth century chiefly to the influence of women in the home, to the increased attention paid to speech in our educational system, and to quickened intercourse among members of the English-speaking world.

There are many who think that for the purposes of social intercourse and of various kinds of public speaking (such as the pulpit and the stage) we require a 'standard speech' and that, when a language is spread as widely over the world as ours is, a generally recognized form of speech is no less desirable than a common literary language. Every dialect has its interest and its appeal; but one who knows only his dialect finds himself at a disadvantage, if he should be called upon to pass beyond the limits within which that dialect is spoken, and it may well be doubted whether his aesthetic appreciation of our literature is not impaired.

If in our schools we regard it as desirable to deal with the pupils' speech at all, we must have some idea of the kind of speech we wish them to acquire; and the clearer that idea is, the more effective will our efforts be. My own feeling is that our aim should be to secure a form of speech that shall be not merely intelligible but pleasing to the greatest number of educated speakers of English; and that implies not only an unobjectionable pronunciation but good voice production.

Those who take an interest in these problems will find that Prof. Jones's dictionary supplies them with an admirable basis for discussion; and it will help them to realize (what they too often fail to realize) that before expressing views as to how people ought to speak, it is well to have some knowledge of how people actually do speak. It is a fatally attractive subject for dogmatizing; but the assumption of infallibility in matters of pronunciation, common as it is, should always arouse suspicion. This book does not claim to afford a model of pronunciation, and criticism that attributes to it any such claim is futile. It is to be judged as a record of facts. To the phonetician it is bound to be of absorbing interest; and to those who like me believe that we can and should face the question what should be taught as 'standard English speech' it will prove no less stimulating.

WALTER RIPMAN.

PREFACE TO THE FIFTH EDITION

THE fifth edition of this dictionary is in the main a reprint of the fourth. Corrections or amplifications have, however, been made in the case of 243 words, and 102 new words have been added. These are listed in Appendix II. I am indebted to friends and correspondents for nearly all of them, and I would express my thanks more particularly to Professor H. C. Wyld and Mr. R. H. Pinhorn who supplied me with valuable information regarding some English family names and Malayan place-names respectively.

The dictionary now contains 54,860 words, including 13,327 proper names.

An important note on transcription has been added in the Introduction (footnote 3, p. xii).

PREFACE TO THE SIXTH EDITION

THIS sixth edition of this dictionary is a reprint of the fifth, embodying, however, the corrections, amplifications, and additions listed in Appendix III. It will be seen that corrections or amplifications have been made in the case of 77 words, and that 42 new words have been added.

The dictionary now contains 54,902 words, including 13,349 proper names (see p. xxvi).

PREFACE TO THE FOURTH EDITION

IT has been evident for some years past that this dictionary was in need of enlargement and of detailed revision. Many new words have entered the language and many rare words have become common since the book was first published (1917). Moreover, many words have undergone changes of pronunciation during that period: new pronunciations have appeared, and pronunciations which were previously rare have now come into common use.

Hence this new (fourth) edition, which has been reset, and which I hope brings the book completely up to date. It contains 54,758 words (including 13,283 proper names, but excluding the inflected forms, see page xxvi).[1] Lists of the principal additions and emendations (as compared with the first edition and its reprints) are given in the Appendix.

The phonetic alphabet is the same as in the original edition, except that vertical stress-marks have been used in place of the former oblique marks, in accordance with the recommendation made by the Association Phonétique Internationale in 1927. For indicating length an ordinary colon has been employed, instead of the colon with triangular dots, as it was found that the latter symbol becomes indistinct in reprints.

The style of transcription is likewise the same as before, viz. 'semi-broad' (see page xii).

The Introduction has been modified in various respects.

In preparing this edition I have adhered to the principle originally followed of making the work in the main a record of pronunciations which I use myself or which I have actually heard used by others or (in comparatively few cases) which have been reported to me by competent observers. I have, however, derived considerable help from two other sources of information, which did not exist when the book was first written, namely Wyld's Universal English Dictionary, and volumes I to VI of the B.B.C.'s Recommendations to Announcers; the authors of these works are excellent phoneticians and their observations can be relied upon. Other reference books have been used as sparingly as possible.

For many of the additions and improvements in this edition, as indeed for many particulars embodied in the original edition, I am indebted to friends and correspondents.

[1] The original edition of 1917 contained 49,690 words (including 11,614 proper names). The second and third editions (1924 and 1926) contained 50,290 words (including 12,044 proper names).

Foremost among them is Mr. Walter Ripman, whose help dates from the time the book was in contemplation. The original plan of the work was settled very largely in consultation with him; later on he revised the whole of the original manuscript with great care, and supplied me with much information that I lacked and innumerable suggestions for improvements. He also revised the whole of the original proofs. Since the appearance of the original edition he has continued his assistance, and in particular has furnished me with the pronunciation of several hundred surnames in which the spelling is little or no guide; the pronunciation was, in every case, ascertained by Mr. Ripman from persons bearing the names. It is with much pleasure that I take this opportunity of again expressing my gratitude to him for all his help.

Others who have rendered special assistance are Miss L. E. Armstrong, Miss E. E. Quick, Mrs. H. M. Davies, Miss E. M. Evans, Miss E. H. A. Robson, Professor A. Lloyd James (the editor of the B.B.C. booklets on Broadcast English), Mr. G. Noël-Armfield, Mr. H. O. Coleman, Mr. D. Abercrombie, Mr. Edmund Jones, Mr. A. P. Rudolf, Dr. G. Dietrich, Professor G. Kirchner, Dr. G Caro, Dr. M. Draber, Dr. M. Polak, and Mr. M. Joos. To these and many others I tender my sincere thanks.

A work of this nature cannot be complete. Moreover, it is too much to hope that errors have been entirely avoided, though every effort has been made to render the information accurate. I should therefore be grateful if any users of the dictionary who detect errors or important omissions would be so kind as to bring them to my notice.

INTRODUCTION

OBJECT OF THE BOOK

1. THE object of the present dictionary is to record, with as much accuracy as is necessary for practical linguistic purposes, the pronunciation used by a considerable number of typical Southern English people (see § 3) in ordinary conversation.

2. The book is a record of facts, not of theories or personal preferences. No attempt is made to decide how people ought to pronounce; all that the dictionary aims at doing is to give a faithful record of the manner in which certain people do pronounce.

THE PRONUNCIATION

3. The pronunciation represented in this book is that which I believe to be most usually heard in everyday speech in the families of Southern English people who have been educated at the public schools.[1] This pronunciation is also used (sometimes with modifications) by those who do not come from the South of England, but who have been educated at these schools. The pronunciation may also be heard, to an extent which is considerable though difficult to specify, from natives of the South of England who have not been educated at these schools. It is probably accurate to say that a majority of Londoners who have had a university education, use either this pronunciation or a pronunciation not differing greatly from it.[2]

4. I believe that the pronunciation above referred to is readily understood in most parts of the English-speaking world. This result is perhaps due to the boarding-school system of education prevalent in England. For centuries past boys from all parts of Great Britain have been educated together in boarding-schools. If a boy in such a school has a marked local peculiarity in his pronunciation, it generally disappears or is modified during his school career under the influence of the different mode of speaking which he hears continually around him; he consequently emerges from school with a pronunciation similar to that of the other boys.

[1] 'Public school' in the English sense, not in the American sense.

[2] The pronunciation is in the main that which I use myself. I have, however, put my pronunciation in a secondary place in all cases where another form appears to me to be in more frequent use.

Similar considerations apply to the modern boarding-schools for girls.

5. In day schools local pronunciations do not disappear nearly as readily as in the boarding-schools, because the pupils continually hear the local pronunciation used around them. Nevertheless the fact remains that people in every important centre often have opportunities of hearing the above-mentioned pronunciation either from residents who have had a public school education, or through the constant intercommunication with London, or through the school teachers, or last, but not least, through broadcasting. For these reasons I think it probable that this form of speech is more widely understood with ease in Great Britain than any other form would be. In what follows I call it 'Received Pronunciation' (abbreviation RP), for want of a better term. I wish it to be clearly understood, however, that RP means merely 'widely understood pronunciation,' and that I do not hold it up as a standard which everyone is recommended to adopt.

6. RP is, as far as I have been able to ascertain, also easily understood in South Africa, Australia, and New Zealand, and by English-speaking Canadians. Even in the United States, where so many varieties of pronunciation are to be heard, it seems that this pronunciation is fairly universally understood without difficulty—a curious fact considering that American speech is not by any means always understood in England. Several American teachers (mostly from New York and the North-Eastern part of the United States) have indeed informed me, somewhat to my surprise, that RP or RP with slight modifications would be a suitable standard for teaching in American schools. Personally, however, I cannot think that any attempt to introduce this pronunciation into America is likely to meet with success.

7. The fact that RP and approximations to it are easily understood almost everywhere in the English-speaking world does not mean that RP is used by a majority of English-speaking people. On the contrary, it is used by a rather small minority. There are countless other ways of pronouncing English in existence, some of them being used by large communities. Whether broadcasting will alter this state of things remains to be seen.

8. I would add here that I do not regard RP as intrinsically 'better' or more 'beautiful' than any other form of pronunciation. I have recorded it because it happens to be the only type of English pronunciation about which I am in a position to obtain full and accurate information.

9. I wish also to state that I have no intention of becoming either a reformer of pronunciation or a judge who decides what pronunciations are 'good' and what are 'bad.' My aim is to observe and record accurately, and I do not believe in the feasibility of imposing one particular form of pronunciation on the English-speaking world. I take the view that people should be allowed to speak as they like. And if the public wants a standardized pronunciation, I have no doubt that some appropriate standard will evolve itself. If there are any who think otherwise, it must be left to them to undertake the invidious task of deciding what is to be approved and what is to be condemned. This book will provide them with some of the materials they will require as a basis to work upon.

UTILITY OF THIS BOOK IN PRACTICAL LINGUISTIC TEACHING

(1) Utility in General

10. This book will, it is hoped, prove useful to any one who wishes to find out an existing pronunciation of words or proper names which he has seen written but never heard.[1] In addition it will be found to have the following special uses depending on the normal speech of the student.

(2) Utility to the English Student who speaks with the RP

11. A study of this pronunciation will help such a student to realize what sounds he uses when he speaks. This knowledge will be of value to him when he is learning the pronunciation of foreign languages, or if he should be called upon to teach his own pronunciation of English.

(3) Utility to the English-speaking Student whose Pronunciation differs from that here recorded

12. A study of RP will bring home to such a student the important fact, which is fundamental to all linguistic study, that great variations of pronunciation exist, and are to be expected.

13. If he is a teacher of English, it is desirable that he should be familiar with the main features of other types of English speech besides his own.

(4) Utility to Foreigners

14. Many foreigners will no doubt consider RP a suitable pronunciation for them to acquire, for the practical reasons that it is widely understood in the English-speaking world and that there are numerous books dealing with it.

[1] Its use is thus the contrary of that of the English Phonetic Dictionary by H. Michaelis and D. Jones (Carl Meyer, Hanover). That work is designed for those who wish to find out the current spelling of words they have heard but not seen written.

THE TRANSCRIPTION

15. The phonetic alphabet used is that of the Association Phonétique Internationale. I have adopted this system of transcription because I consider it the best at present in existence.

16. A fairly 'broad' form of transcription is employed. From some points of view I should have preferred to use a completely broad form based rigidly on the principle 'one letter per phoneme.' If a suitable variety of the language is chosen for transcription, such a system would require only seven vowel-letters (i, e, a, o, u, ʌ, ə), the smallest number possible without giving rise to ambiguity.[1] The use of this system would, however, have precluded me from indicating certain variants which it seemed desirable to include.[2] The transcription is therefore narrowed to the extent of introducing four extra vowel-symbols (ɛ, æ, ɑ, and ɔ).[3]

17. Some critics have urged me to adopt what has been termed 'the narrow transcription' of English,[4] which involves introducing four further letters (to differentiate the qualities of short and long «i», «u», «ɔ», «ə»).[5] At one time I was much attracted by this type of transcription. I used it regularly in Le Maître Phonétique from 1923 to 1928, and I have experimented with it in practical teaching for many years. My conclusion is that it presents certain advantages in connection with teaching the phonetics of English to English-speaking students, since types of English exist which do not exhibit consistent relationships between vowel-quality and length. For other purposes, however, I find a broader transcription more serviceable.

D. J.

[1] Specimens of this style of transcription will be found in Le Maître Phonétique, Jan. 1931, p. 12, Jan. 1932, p. 8, April 1932, p. 44, and various other numbers of Le Maître Phonétique from 1935 onwards.

[2] Namely the «eə» which occurs as a variant of «eiə», the long «æ:» now often heard in various words (e.g. glad), the short «ɑ» heard in some interjections, and the monophthongal unstressed «o» occurring as an alternative to «ou», or «ɔ» or «ə» in many words (e.g. molest, obey, torrential).

[3] The inclusion of «ɛ» and «ɔ» is in reality a complication of very doubtful value. These letters can quite well be replaced by «e» and «o», since the variants written «eə» and «o» in this dictionary are adequately covered by the notations «eiə» and «ou» with appropriate conventions.

[4] As used, for instance, in Armstrong's English Phonetic Reader (University of London Press) and Ward's Phonetics of English (Heffer, Cambridge).

[5] Some indeed would like to see the transcription narrowed still further, e.g. by introducing a special letter for one of the varieties of unstressed «i», by designing a new letter for the ordinary English «e» (on the ground that it differs from French «e» and «ɛ»), by using a special sign for 'dark' «l», etc. In my view such additions are undesirable, since they complicate the phonetic writing unnecessarily, and impair its legibility and general usefulness.

EXPLANATIONS

I. How to read the Entries

All entries in this dictionary are to be taken as expressions of opinion by the author. Thus the entry celluloid 'seljulɔid

is to be taken to mean 'The word written in conventional spelling celluloid is, in the opinion of the author, generally pronounced « 'seljulɔid » in ordinary conversation by the people referred to in § 3 of the Introduction, subject to variations referred to in the notes on pp. xx–xxiii.'

II. Meaning of [ ]

Where two (or more) pronunciations of a word are current among the people referred to in § 3 of the Introduction, and neither (or none) of the forms can be considered rare (relatively to the frequency of the word), both (or all) are as a rule given, the less frequent form (or forms) being enclosed in square brackets [ ]. The only common variants not included are those mentioned in Section XIX. Thus the entry dynastic di'næstik [dai'n-]

is to be taken to mean that the forms « di'næstik » and « dai'næstik » both occur in RP, « di'næstik » being in the author's opinion the more frequent.

In a few cases where it was particularly difficult to form any idea of the relative frequency of variants, the forms have simply been separated by commas. This is done, for instance, in the case of the interjection humph, where only the form « hʌmf » is enclosed in [ ] as being distinctly less frequent than the other forms.

III. Rare Pronunciations

Pronunciations which are undoubtedly rare (relatively to the frequency of the word) in the speech of those referred to in § 3 of the Introduction are not as a rule included in the dictionary. In cases where for some special reason it has been thought desirable to mention the existence of such rarer forms, the fact that they are not of the same degree of commonness as other variants has been shown by the addition of 'rarely,' 'old-fashioned,' or some other qualifying term.

IV. Meaning of Italic Letters

When two variant pronunciations are distinguished by the insertion or omission of a single sound, and both forms appear to be of approximately equal frequency, the fact is indicated by printing the symbol of the optional sound in italics. Thus the entry

defamatory di'fæmətəri is to be taken to mean that the forms « di'fæmətəri » and « di'fæmətri » both occur in RP, the two forms being of approximately equal frequency.

V. Meaning of (:)

When two variant pronunciations are distinguished by the use of « i: » and « i », « u: » and « u », or « ə: » and « ə », and the two forms appear to be of approximately equal frequency, the notation « i(:) », « u(:) », or « ə(:) » has been adopted. Thus the entry

duplicity dju(:)'plisiti

is to be taken to mean that the forms « dju:'plisiti » and « dju'plisiti » both occur in RP, and are of approximately equal frequency.

VI. Combination of Variant Forms

When two or more variant pronunciations are indicated, it is to be understood that the forms may be combined in so far as they may be compatible with each other. Thus the entry lithograph 'liθəgrɑ:f [-θog-, -græf] is to be taken to mean that the four forms « 'liθəgrɑ:f », « 'liθogrɑ:f », « 'liθəgræf », « 'liθogræf », all occur in RP, « 'liθəgrɑ:f » being on the whole the most frequent. Similarly the entry distinction dis'tiŋkʃən

is to be taken to mean that the four forms « dis'tiŋkʃən », « dis'tiŋʃən », « dis'tiŋkʃn », « dis'tiŋʃn », all occur in RP, and are of approximately equal frequency.

VII. Variant Spellings

Square brackets [ ] are also used to show variant spellings of words written in conventional spelling in more than one way, but the use of these brackets has in this case no reference to the frequency of either spelling. Thus the two spellings iron-gray, iron-grey are grouped together under the notation iron-gray [-grey]

This device is not resorted to when the two spellings would be widely separated from each other in the alphabetical order of the words, as in the case of coloration and colouration.

Variations of spelling distinguished by the presence or absence of a single letter are shown, when convenient, by enclosing that letter in round brackets ( ). Thus the two spellings zincky, zinky are grouped together under the notation zin(c)ky.

In like manner, proper names which have the same pronunciation, but spellings differing by the presence or absence of a single letter, are often combined by enclosing that letter in round brackets ( ). Thus the entry is to be taken to mean that the proper names Bloxham and Bloxam are both pronounced « 'blɔksəm ».

VIII. Proper Names identical with Ordinary Words

When a proper name is identical with an ordinary word both in conventional spelling and in pronunciation, the fact is indicated by placing a capital letter in round brackets ( ) after the ordinary spelling of the word. Thus the entry is to be taken to mean that the noun hay and the proper name Hay are both pronounced « hei ».

hay (H.) hei

When two proper names exist, one of which is identical in spelling and pronunciation with the singular and the other with the plural of an ordinary noun, the one bracketed capital letter placed after the singular noun is to be understood to cover also the name having the plural form. Thus the (G.) in the entry

gibbon (G.), -s 'gibən, -z is to be taken to show that Gibbons is pronounced « 'gibənz » as well as that Gibbon is pronounced « 'gibən ». Where, however, a name of plural form has a different pronunciation from that of the plural noun, it is given as a separate entry (e.g. Gillies).

IX. Proper Names pronounced Differently but spelt the Same

When two different proper names happen to have the same conventional spelling, the different pronunciations are separated by commas. Thus the entry is to be taken to mean that there is a proper name Bowden pronounced « 'boudn » and another proper name Bowden pronounced « 'baudn ».

Bowden 'boudn, 'bəudn

Similarly with Batho, Laing, Jaques, Rowan, Powell, and many others.

X. Borrowed Foreign Words

In the case of borrowed foreign words which are pronounced in the foreign way or nearly so by many of the people referred to in § 3 of the Introduction, the foreign pronunciation is added in round brackets ( ). Thus the entry causerie 'kouzəri(:) (kozri)

is to be taken to mean that the more usual pronunciation of people referred to in § 3 of the Introduction is « 'kouzəri: » or « 'kouzəri », but that some would pronounce « kozri » in the French way or an approximation to this.

The same plan is adopted in the case of those words which are not really foreign, but are sometimes pronounced as if they were (see, for instance, ormolu).

It is to be understood then that all phonetically written words enclosed in round brackets ( ) are foreign (or supposed by some to be so), and the symbols are in such cases to be taken to have their foreign values. Thus in the French transcriptions the short « i » is to be taken to represent the tense sound, the « e » is to be taken to be about cardinal vowel No. 2, and an « ə » occurring in the first syllable of a French word is capable of being elided in accordance with the rules of elision in French. In the German transcriptions « a » is to be taken to have an intermediate value not very different from English « ɑ ». Readers requiring details as to the formation and use of such foreign sounds must refer to books on the phonetics of the language in question.

XI. Words grouped under Head-words

The pronunciations of all plurals of nouns are shown under the singulars; all comparatives and superlatives of adjectives and inflected forms of verbs are given under the simple words from which they are derived. Likewise nouns formed from other words by means of the terminations -er, -ing, -ment, -or, or -ness, and adverbs formed by adding the termination -ly will generally be found under the words from which they may be considered to be derived. Thus talker, meeting (s.), annulment will be found under talk, meet, annul.

Other derivatives are also grouped under simple words, when no difficulty in finding them is caused thereby. Thus refractive will be found under refract, motherhood and motherless under mother.

The derived forms of words are not as a rule written out in full, but the terminations to be added are each preceded by a hyphen and divided by a comma or sometimes by a semicolon from what precedes. Thus the entry afford, -s, -ing, -ed ə'fɔ:d, -z, -iŋ, -id is to be taken to mean that in RP the words afford, affords, affording, afforded are pronounced « ə'fɔ:d », « ə'fɔ:dz », « ə'fɔ:diŋ », « ə'fɔ:did ».

When the head-word is a monosyllable, and a termination for forming a derived word adds another syllable, it is to be understood that the derived word has a strong stress on the root-syllable. Thus from the entry nine, -s, -fold; -pin/s nain, -z, -fould; -pin/z

it is to be understood that ninefold and ninepin have single stress (on the first syllable). And from the entry ewe, -s; -lamb/s ju:, -z; -'læm/z

it is to be understood that ewe-lamb is pronounced with double stress.

When a head-word is a compound of which the second element is an unstressed monosyllable, and a termination for forming a derived word adds another syllable, it is to be understood that the derived word has secondary stress on the first syllable of the second element. Thus from the entry

wash-hou|se, -ses 'wɔʃhau|s, -ziz

it is to be understood that wash-houses is pronounced « 'wɔʃˌhauziz ».

When the final part of a head-word is not repeated before a termination, the part to be repeated is marked off by | (see, for instance, addendum, fade). The same thing is done when the final part undergoes some alteration in pronunciation, though not in spelling, in an inflected form (see, for instance, nocturnal, where | precedes the al).

Words not grammatically connected (and especially proper names) are often similarly grouped together, with or without the use of the mark |, where no difficulty in finding the words is caused thereby. Thus the entry is to be taken to mean that in RP Fenton is pronounced « 'fentən » and Fenwick « 'fenik ».

Fen|ton, -wick 'fen|tən, -ik

The mark / is often used to indicate derivatives of words grouped under a head-word. Thus the entry

elegan|ce, -t/ly 'eligən|s, -t/li is to be taken to mean that in RP the words elegance, elegant, elegantly are pronounced « 'eligəns », « 'eligənt », « 'eligəntli ».

When one or more derived words are grouped under a head-word as explained above, and a variant pronunciation of the head-word is given, that variant is to be taken to apply to all the derived words in so far as this may be possible. Thus it is to be understood from the entry

Galt, -on gɔ:lt [gɔlt], -ən that Galton as well as Galt is subject to the variant pronunciation with « ɔ ».

XII. Variations of Stress

Variations of stress are indicated in many cases by representing the syllables of the word in question by hyphens, instead of writing the word out in its entirety. Thus in the entry the indications '--'-, '--- are to be taken to mean the pronunciations « 'wɔ:tə'lu:, 'wɔ:təlu: ». Very often (as in this case) a note is appended stating in what circumstances or by whom the variants are used.

Waterloo ˌwɔ:tə'lu: ['--'-, '---]

XIII. Abbreviated Spellings

A certain number of common abbreviations (such as Bros., cwt., E.C., MSS, q.v.) are included in the dictionary. These are arranged in the alphabetical order according to the letters composing them. Similarly the names beginning with St. are placed among the other words beginning with st-; thus St. Francis follows Steyning in alphabetical order.

XIV. r-Linking

The phenomenon of r-linking requires special mention. It will be recalled that the sound « r » is often inserted at the end of a word when the word immediately following it in connected speech begins with a vowel. Usage varies in many ways, but the main facts are as follows:

(1) Such addition of « r » only takes place at the end of words which normally terminate in « ə », « ɑ: », « ɔ: », or « ə: ».

(2) It does not as a rule take place unless the word has a close or fairly close grammatical connection with the word following.

(3) In the speech of many of those referred to in § 3 of the Introduction there are a certain number of words ending in the above-mentioned vowels after which no « r » is ever inserted. These words are left unmarked in this dictionary, and the mark * is placed at the end of all words which are capable of taking the final « r » in the pronunciation of these speakers. Such speakers pronounce far by itself as « fɑ: », but far away as « 'fɑ:rə'wei »; they pronounce the idea of it as « ðiai'diəəvit ».[1]

(4) In the speech of another considerable proportion of those referred to in § 3 of the Introduction such insertion takes place not only at the end of words marked *, but also at the end of every other word terminating with « ə ». These pronounce the idea of it as « ðiai'diərəvit ».[1]

(5) A few of those referred to in § 3 of the Introduction extend the practice to all words ending in « ɑ: » and « ɔ: ».

(6) Some again never insert « r » at all, not even in words marked *. These pronounce far away as « 'fɑ:ə'wei ».

The entry

is therefore to be taken to mean that a considerable proportion of those referred to in § 3 of the Introduction would pronounce the word « fɑ:r » when followed by a word beginning with a vowel which is closely connected by the sense (as in far away), but « fɑ: » in all other cases.

The entry

idea ai'diə

(where a word ending in « ə » is not followed by *) is to be taken to mean that a considerable proportion of those referred to in § 3 of the Introduction pronounce the word « ai'diə » in all circumstances, though many insert « r » when the word is immediately followed by a word beginning with a vowel.

[1] Or « -ɔvit »

In derivatives from a word the phonetic rendering of which ends with * ((3) above), the * is to be dropped. Thus the entry flatter, -s, -ing/ly, -ed, -er/s 'flætə*, -z, -riŋ/li, -d, -rə*/z is to be taken to mean that in RP the words flatter, flatters, flattering, flatteringly, flattered, flatterer, flatterers are pronounced « 'flætə*, 'flætəz, 'flætəriŋ, 'flætəriŋli, 'flætəd, 'flætərə*, 'flætərəz ».

XV. Incomplete Plosive Consonants

It is to be understood throughout that when two plosive consonants occur next to each other in a word, as in act (« ækt »), bedtime (« 'bedtaim »), the first is pronounced without explosion, i.e. it consists of ' stop ' only. Cases of unexploded stop not coming under this general rule are indicated by placing a reversed comma immediately after the consonant symbol (as in «nəupʿ», a variant pronunciation of the interjection no).

XVI. Syllabic Consonants

The fact that a consonant is syllabic is only marked (by placing ̩ under the symbol) when there might be ambiguity. Thus the syllabic « l » is specially marked in « 'flænl̩i » (flannelly), because « 'flænli » would indicate a pronunciation rhyming with Hanley.

XVII. Syllable-division

It has been necessary to show what is commonly known as ' syllable-division ' in all cases where the transcription without special mark might lead to ambiguity. A hyphen is used to mark the division. This mark is not to be taken to indicate any cessation of sound; it simply means that the preceding syllable is treated in the matter of the relative length of its elements as if it were final. The use of this hyphen always implies a lengthening of the sound (vowel or consonant) immediately preceding.

Thus beestings (first milk of a cow) and bee-stings (stings of bees) are distinguished in pronunciation, and this distinction is shown in the transcription by writing « 'bi:stiŋz » and « 'bi:-stiŋz » respectively; it will be observed that the « i: » in the latter case is noticeably longer than in the former. Other examples are « 'bai-plein » (biplane), cp. « 'paip-lain » (pipe-line), « 'maus-træp » (mousetrap), cp. « 'toust-ræk » (toast-rack), « 'ʃel-fiʃ » (shell-fish), cp. « 'self-iʃ » (selfish), « 'nʌt-ʃel » (nutshell), cp. « 'mitʃəl » (Mitchell). (« tʃ » is always to be taken to have the affricate value when the two letters are not separated by a hyphen.)

When the syllable immediately following the point of syllable-division has a primary or secondary stress, the hyphen is not inserted, the presence of the stress-mark being a sufficient indication.

The presence of - is to be understood, whenever necessary, in front of the terminations of derivatives or other words grouped under a head-word. Thus it is to be understood in « 'delft-wɛə* » (Delftware), « 'goul-poust » (goal-post), « 'gʌn-stɔk » (gun-stock), since the transcriptions « 'delftwɛə*, 'goulpoust, 'gʌnstɔk » might equally well stand for the non-existent pronunciations « 'delf-twɛə*, 'goulp-oust, 'gʌns-tɔk ».

XVIII. Strong and Weak Forms

The mention 'strong form' appended to a pronunciation means that the form in question is the one which the word has when stressed. The designation 'weak form' means that the form in question only occurs in unstressed position.

It is to be understood that circumstances exist in which strong forms occur unstressed, but in no case does a weak form occur stressed.

Unless the term 'weak form' is amplified by some such qualification as 'occasional' it is to be understood that the weak form (or one or other of the weak forms, when several are given) is the pronunciation most usually heard when the word is unstressed.

XIX. Variants of Sound-distribution occurring in RP but not as a Rule noted in the Dictionary

It has for practical reasons not been possible to include in the body of the dictionary all the variants of every word. We give below some examples of the chief variants which can be represented without recourse to a still 'narrower' system of phonetic notation, but which have generally been omitted from the dictionary on practical grounds. All these varieties may be heard from people of the type referred to in § 3 of the Introduction.

(1) Omission of «t» and «d» from the groups «nts», «ndz», e.g. «hins» for «hints», «saunz» for «saundz» (sounds).

(2) Insertion of «t» between «n» and «s», or of «d» between «n» and «z», e.g. «fents» for «fens» (fence), «'frendzi» for «'frenzi» (frenzy).

(3) Very numerous assimilations and reductions due to the proximity of other words. Such are: «dʒʌʃ» for «dʒʌst» (often heard in just shut the door), «ðiʃ» for «ðis» (often heard in this shop), «dʌʒ» for «dʌz» (often heard in does she), «l̩'au», «n̩i» for «ə'lau», «'eni» (often heard in we're not allowed to, they haven't got any more), «blain» for «blaind» (generally heard in three blind mice), «rɑ:ðr» for «'rɑ:ðər» (often heard in rather a good thing), «gu» for «gud» (as in a good deal), «ə'kʌmn̩imənt» for «ə'kʌmpnimənt» (accompaniment).

(4) Reduction of «aiə» to «aə», «ɑə», «a:», or «ɑ:», e.g. «di'zaərəbl» or «di'zɑərəbl» or «di'za:rəbl» or «di'zɑ:rəbl» for «di'zaiərəbl» (desirable), and «auə» to «ɑə» or «aə» or «ɑ:», e.g. «'kɔliflɑə» or «'kɔliflaə» or «'kɔliflɑ:» for «'kɔliflauə» (cauliflower).

(5) Substitution of «ə» for «i» in the penultimate syllables of terminations such as -ity, -ily, e.g. «ə'biləti» for «ə'biliti» (ability), «'i:zəli» for «'i:zili» (easily), «'pæsədʒiz» for «'pæsidʒiz» (passages).

(6) Variations of stress and sound due to a desire to emphasize one part of a word, e.g. the form «'kɔ'miʃən» (commission) which is sometimes used when the word is contrasted with omission, the form «'θri:-plai» (three-ply) which might be used instead of «'θri:'plai» when contrasting with two-ply.

(7) Reinforcement of secondary stress on the first syllable of a word for the purpose of giving greater emphasis to the whole word, e.g. «'fʌn-də'mentl» for «ˌfʌndə'mentl» (fundamental).

For variants of sound-formation see next section.

VALUES OF THE PHONETIC SYMBOLS

The mode of formation of the various speech-sounds used in this book is shown roughly in the annexed table (p. xxi).

NOTES ON THE SOUNDS AND THE VARIATIONS IN THEIR VALUES

A. Consonants

« tʃ » and « dʒ » are always the affricates.[1] When « t » and « ʃ » belong to different syllables they are separated by a hyphen (see Explanations XVII).

Of the English consonants the only ones subject to notable variations in manner of articulation are « l », « r », « h », the group « hw », and « t ».

Both ' clear ' and ' dark ' varieties of « l »[2] are met with in the pronunciation of those referred to in § 3 of the Introduction. The majority of these speakers use a clear or medium variety whenever a vowel follows, and a dark variety when the sound is final or followed by a consonant. It has not been thought necessary to mark these differences in the dictionary.

The variety of « r » most commonly used by those referred to in § 3 of the Introduction is a fricative « r »; with many the sound is accompanied by a lip-protrusion. Some use a rolled or semi-rolled (flapped) « r » in many words (except when another alveolar consonant precedes).[3]

« h » is often a voiced sound when situated between two voiced sounds (as in freehold); such voicing has not been specially indicated.

« hw » is to be taken to mean either the group « h »+« w », or the single sound « ʍ » (unvoiced « w »). Both pronunciations occur, and they are difficult to distinguish.

« t » terminating a syllable is pronounced as a glottal stop (« ʔ ») by many speakers in common words and expressions in certain situations, and especially where the following syllable begins with « n », « l », « r », « w », or « j ». Thus fortnight, Scotland, quite right, I haven't got one, not yet are often pronounced « 'fɔ:ʔnait », « 'skɔʔlənd », « 'kwaiʔ 'rait », « ai 'hævnt 'gɔʔ wʌn », « 'nɔʔ 'jet ». (The use of the glottal stop for « t » in other positions must, I think, be regarded as dialectal.)

B. Vowels

As regards English vowels numerous variations in manner of articulation may be observed in the speech of those referred to in § 3 of the Introduction.

What I believe to be the average values are shown in the frontispiece with greater precision than in the table on p. xxi; in the frontispiece the English vowels are placed relatively to a system of 8 'cardinal' vowels « i », « e », « ɛ », « a », « ɑ », « ɔ », « o », « u », described in books on phonetics.[4] The diagram has reference only to tongue-positions (not to lip-positions); the positions of the dots are approximately representative of the positions taken up by the highest point of the tongue in forming the vowels. The positions of the English vowels are shown in red, and those of the cardinal vowels in black. The lip-positions are as follows: « ɔ » has slight open lip-rounding; « ɔ: », « o », « u » have medium open lip-rounding; « u: » has close lip-rounding; the remainder have spread or neutral lips.

The secondary articulation of sounds having double articulation is shown by the symbols in ( ).
The alternative formation of sounds with variable articulation is shown by the symbols in [ ].
Symbols representing sounds not essential to normal English pronunciation are enclosed in { }.

The chief variations in the values of the vowels (in the pronunciation of those referred to in § 3 of the Introduction) are briefly summarized below. It is to be understood that these variants may be substituted for the 'average' values throughout the dictionary.

« i: » tends towards and is often replaced by a diphthong consisting of lax « i » followed by tense « i ».

« i » in unstressed syllables is generally somewhat opener than in stressed syllables. Many of those referred to in § 3 of the Introduction replace final unstressed « i » by « e », or sometimes even by « ɛ ».

« e » varies between cardinal « ɛ » and a point a little above half-way between cardinal « e » and cardinal « ɛ ». Some authors write the sound with the sign « ɛ̝ », and there is much to be said in favour of this mode of representing it. It must be borne in mind, however, that the « ɛ » of the diphthong « ɛə » is opener than the sound here written « e ».

« ɑ: » varies between cardinal « ɑ » and a point about half-way between cardinal « a » and cardinal « ɑ ».

« ɔ: » is subject to slight variations, more especially in the matter of the amount of lip-rounding. In words in which « ɔ: » and « ɔ » are alternative pronunciations, some speakers (a relatively small number) use an intermediate sound; thus cross is pronounced by some « krɔs », by others « krɔ:s », and by others with an intermediate vowel. This is to be understood to apply to all words in which « ɔ: » and « ɔ » are given as variants of each other.

« u » is likewise subject to slight variations in the amount of lip-rounding.

« u: » tends towards and is often replaced by a diphthong made up of lax « u » followed by tense « u ».

« ʌ » is with some speakers somewhat advanced in the direction of cardinal « a ».

« ə: » varies to some extent. With some speakers it is nearer the half-close central position, and with others nearer the half-open central position.

« ə » varies noticeably according to its position in the word and in the sentence. In final position it is often replaced by « ʌ ». In other positions its quality varies considerably according to the nature of the surrounding sounds; the variations extend from almost « ʌ » to the half-close central position or even higher. Three different values may be heard in the words china, cathedral; in the latter word the second « ə » is lower and more retracted than the first « ə ».[1]

« ei » tends towards and is often replaced by « ɛi » or « ɛe ».

« ou » varies considerably, generally in the direction of being advanced towards the central position, also to some extent by partial unrounding of the first element; with some the diphthong approaches « ɔu » (with cardinal « ɔ »), especially when followed by a 'dark' « l ».

« ai » varies slightly both in the direction of « æi » and in the direction of « ɑi ».

« au » varies between « au » (with cardinal « a ») and « ɑu » (almost with cardinal « ɑ »).

« iə » when final tends towards and is often replaced by « iʌ ».

« ɛə » tends towards and is often replaced by « æə ». When final it tends towards and is often replaced by « ɛʌ » or « æʌ ».

[1] See Outline of English Phonetics (3rd and subsequent editions), §§ 355–70.

« ɔə » when final tends to have a rather open variety of « ə ».

« uə » when final tends to have a rather open variety of « ə », besides the other variants noted in the body of the dictionary.

The vowels « æ », « ɔ », and the diphthongs « ɔi », « oi », « ui », « eə », and « oə » do not vary to any great extent.

Sounds not occurring in Normal English Pronunciation

Brief indications of the values of the symbols which represent sounds not occurring in normal English pronunciation are given below. For details in regard to these, and for further details with regard to the English sounds, the reader is referred to my Outline of English Phonetics and other text-books on phonetics.

ʾ glottal plosive.
ɱ breathed (voiceless) m.
ɱ labio-dental nasal.
ɲ French ' n mouillé.'
l̥ breathed (voiceless) l.
ɾ̥ breathed (voiceless) r.
ɸ bi-labial f.
ç the sound of ch in German ich.
x the sound of ch in Scotch loch, German ach.
ɥ the sound of u in French nuit.
y the sound of u in French lune.
ẏ breathed (voiceless) y.
ø the sound of eu in French peu.
œ the sound of eu in French neuf.
ɯ unrounded u.
ʇ alveolar click.
ƽ lateral click.
ɛ̃ the sound of in in French vin.
ɑ̃ the sound of an in French tante.
ɔ̃ the sound of on in French bon.
œ̃ the sound of un in French brun.
ə̃ nasalized ə.

Other Signs and Abbreviations

: indicates that the sound represented by the preceding symbol is long. In the case of the English ' long ' vowels « i: », « ɔ: », « u: », « ə: », this sign also implies the differences of quality between them and the corresponding short vowels. For the bracketed (:) see Explanations V.

ˌ placed below a consonant-letter (thus « n̩ », « l̩ », « ɾ̩ ») indicates that the consonant is syllabic (see Explanations XVI).

˳ or ° applied to the symbol of a voiced sound indicates that the sound is breathed (voiceless).

ˀ placed immediately after the symbol of a plosive consonant means that the sound consists of ' stop ' only, i.e. is not finished off by a plosion (see Explanations XV).

* indicates that « r » is generally inserted when a word beginning with a vowel follows (see Explanations XIV).

> placed under a letter means that the sound is pronounced with inhaling of breath.

' indicates that the following syllable has strong stress.

, indicates that the following syllable has secondary stress.

N.B.—As the stress of French words is variable and subject to the rules formulated in the books on French phonetics, it has not been marked in the transcription of French pronunciation.

- used as a phonetic sign marks syllable-division (see Explanations XVII).

[ ] encloses less frequent pronunciations (see Explanations II).

( ) encloses foreign pronunciations (see Explanations X).

| marks off the part of a word which is repeated in derivatives or other words grouped under a head-word (see Explanations XI).

marks off derivatives of derivatives (see Explanations XI).

Phonetic symbols printed in italics represent sounds which are sometimes inserted and sometimes omitted (see Explanations IV).

KEY-WORDS FOR ENGLISH PHONETIC SYMBOLS

Key-words are not required for the following consonants: p, b, t, d, k, m, n, l, r, f, v, s, z, h, w. We give below key-words for the remaining sounds, including the affricate consonants and the diphthongs. The diphthongs marked † occur only as variants.

It is to be understood that the key-words illustrate the sounds in question when pronounced by many, but not necessarily by all, of the people referred to in § 3 of the Introduction.

NUMBER OF WORDS RECORDED IN THE DICTIONARY

THE sixth edition of this dictionary records the pronunciation of 54,902 words, exclusive of the numerous inflected forms mentioned below. This total is made up as follows:

Ordinary words entered as head-words		31,341
Ordinary words grouped under head-words	with terminations -ly or -ness	5,431
	with terminations -er, -or, or -ment	1,729
	miscellaneous	2,996
	Total number of ordinary words	41,497	41,497
Proper Names [1]	entered as head-words	11,013
	grouped under such head-words	1,078
	indicated by bracketed capital letter	1,258
	Total number of Proper Names	13,349	13,349
Abbreviations			56
	Total		54,902

Words of different meaning but with the same pronunciation and spelling are not entered as separate words. Thus there is only one entry bear.

The following words are in the dictionary, but are not counted in the above total (except in the comparatively rare cases where such forms are entered as head-words):—

Plurals of nouns.

Similar forms not having plural meaning (e.g. athletics).

Comparatives and superlatives of adjectives.

Inflected forms of verbs.

Words derived from inflected forms of verbs by addition of a further suffix (e.g. affectedly, affectedness).

Verbal forms derived from words other than verbs (e.g. brocaded, blanketing).

Proper Names of plural form grouped under the corresponding Proper Name of singular form (e.g. Ayres).

Proper Names formed by omission of a bracketed letter (e.g. Bloxam).

Alternative spellings indicated by [ ] or by bracketing a letter (e.g. Abercromby, battledoor, zinky).

[1] The term 'Proper Name' is taken to include all words written with a capital letter.
